To whom it may concern,

I am writing to you in support of Petition 23-01 by Jonathon Reisman to allow animal lungs to be allowed to be saved and used as human food. I agree with the petition on several grounds and would add that as a family doctor who has practiced in rural Pennsylvania for 30 years, I have never seen any illness related to the consumption of lungs which is common in the Mennonite, Amish and homesteader communities here. As stated, healthy lungs like healthy liver have not been shown to present a significant risk to the population.

Thank you for the consideration,

James E Chlebowski M.D.
