Food Safety and Inspection Service

[Docket No. FSIS–2025–0010]

Delayed Verification Sampling of Not Ready-to-Eat Breaded Stuffed Chicken Products

AGENCY: Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS), U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: FSIS is announcing that it is delaying the date it will begin sampling not ready-to-eat (NRTE) breaded stuffed chicken products for Salmonella and delaying the date establishments need to reassess their Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point (HACCP) plans for these products from May 1, 2025, to November 3, 2025. This additional time is necessary for FSIS to finalize its instructions to inspectors and prepare its inspection program personnel (IPP) and laboratories for the new sampling and testing. In addition, this additional time is necessary for FSIS to provide industry with guidance on holding and controlling products pending FSIS' sampling results.

DATES: FSIS will begin sampling NRTE breaded stuffed chicken on November 3, 2025. Establishments will have until November 3, 2025, to reassess their HACCP plans for this product.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

Rachel Edelstein, Assistant Administrator, Office of Policy and Program Development by telephone at (202) 205–0495.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: FSIS is the public health agency within the USDA responsible for ensuring that meat, poultry, and egg products are safe, wholesome, and properly labeled. In support of this mission, FSIS published a final determination in the Federal Register on May 1, 2024, declaring that NRTE breaded stuffed chicken products containing Salmonella at levels of 1 colony forming unit (CFU) per gram or higher are adulterated under the Poultry Products Inspection Act (PPIA) (21

U.S.C. 453(g)(1) and (3)) (89 FR 35033). The final determination also announced FSIS' intention to implement verification procedures, including sampling and testing of raw incoming chicken components used to produce NRTE breaded stuffed chicken products (88 FR 35033, 35050–35051). Additionally, the final determination required all NRTE breaded stuffed chicken establishments to reassess their HACCP plans for this product (89 FR 35033, 35050).

FSIS is now announcing a delay in the start date for its sampling program for NRTE breaded stuffed chicken products. Initially set to begin on May 1, 2025, the sampling program will now start on November 3, 2025.

FSIS is announcing this delay in finalizing its sampling program and attendant guidance because it was unable to complete this process due to competing priorities at the end of the last administration. This delay will provide additional time for FSIS and industry to prepare for implementation of the sampling program. As noted in FSIS Notice 15–24, Salmonella as an Adulterant in Not Ready-To-Eat Breaded Stuffed Chicken Products, May 1, 2024, the Agency intends to issue updated sampling instructions and training for IPP prior to implementing its sampling program. FSIS laboratories also will need to update their methods for this new testing. Before FSIS begins verification sampling, the Agency will announce in its newsletter, the Constituent Update, information about the methods it will use for qualitative and quantitative analyses for Salmonella in NRTE breaded stuffed chicken. While industry is not required to do their own sampling of NRTE breaded stuffed chicken for Salmonella, some establishments may voluntarily choose to use FSIS' methods. Therefore, this additional time will allow industry to prepare for or develop their own testing if they wish to do so. Moreover, FSIS laboratories need additional time to prepare for the increased workload. Proper IPP and lab readiness is essential to maintain the accuracy, reliability, and timeliness of test results, which are critical for ensuring food safety and protecting public health.

The delay will also allow FSIS to help establishments comply with the final determination by providing new recommendations on lotting and holding product (88 FR 35033, 35051). FSIS may issue a guidance document or hold webinars to provide guidance. This additional time will allow industry to ask questions and provide feedback on the Agency guidance.

Finally, this delay will provide time for new leadership appointed after January 20, 2025, to review and provide policy input on the Agency's sampling program and guidance documents for this product.
